thirty-mile paced bloycle race between Edward Taylore, of France, and "Tom" Linton, of England, will take place at the Manhattan Beach track to-morrow. Both men are in good condition. Taylore gained two victories over Linton in Paris. Each man will have thirty-two pacemakers in tomorrow's race, and Linton's friends expect him to turn the tables on the Frenchman. A number of improvements have been made in the grandstand ALLEGHANY COUNTRY CLUB TOURNAand other accommodations have been made for vis-tors. The most important change is the moving of the bleaching boards from the head of the home-stretch to the point facing the straight run home. This change protects the contestants from the ocean breezes, which formerly faced them and in-terfered seriously with the time made.

The last race meet in the annual State Circuit will be held at Berkeley Oval to-morrow. It will be the only one of the dozen tournaments to include a iddle-distance race paced by multicycle teams. Each member of the racing crew employed by the winner will be rewarded with a gold watch. This will be the first instance in an smateur paced race where the pacing men have been remunerated for their hard work for the principal. The struggles for the State championships, of which there are three on the card, promise to be close and exciting. three on the card, promise to be close and sacting three contests. 'Eddie" Bald picks Jaap Eden as the winner over "Majah" Taylor. Bald regards Eden as one of the greatest riders now in America "Eden," said Raid, "is a rider who possesses a rare burst of speed and good judgment. He is a fine judge of speed and good judgets abroad over Linton and other notables show that he is a rider of the first magnitude. I believe that Taylor will make it in-teresting enough for a while, but Eden's superior riding ability will tell in the end and he will win."

ENGINEERS GRADUATED.

STUDENTS RECEIVE DEGREES AT STEVENS INSTITUTE-SOME ARE SERVING ON UNITED STATES CRUISERS. The twenty-sixth annual commencement of the

Stevens Institute of Technology was held in the Lyric Theatre, Hoboken, last night, when fifty-seven young men received the degree of mechani-cal engineer. Half a dozen members of the class who are serving their country as assistant engineers on the Badger, manned by the Battalion of the East, New-Jersey Naval Reserve, and on other vessels of the Navy were necessarily absent. The Rev. J. Clayton Mitchell, rector of Trinity Church, made a prayer, after which Dr. Henry Morton, the president, made a brief address, in which he said:

Morton, the president, made a brief address, in which he said:

The question was asked me only yesterday why we called the concluding exercises of the college year a commencement. Most of you, no doubt, could answer for me, and say that it is, in fact, the commencement of active life work for the graduating class, and that this is the subject of our celebration. In the present case, and with this particular class, this is especially true, for many of its members are not only about to begin their active work as engineers, but have already begun it, and that in the highest service they or any other men could enter—the service of their country and of humanity. I allude, of course, to the fact that a number of our graduating class of '88 are already at see, acting as assistant engineers on one or another of the United States cruisers.

The first heroically fought battle between the fron-clad ships of modern times is that in which the Chillan Admiral Graw defended his ship, the Husscar, with such heroic persistency against two fronclads of the navy of Peru, in which battle his life was sacrificed for his country. Ever since, and to the present day, whenever there is a rollcall of the Chillan Navy, the name of Admiral Graw is called, and the answer is: "Absent, but accounted for." When, presently, we shall read the roll of Sievens graduating of '86 there will be some names to which we can answer (though without the tragic association impiled in the parallel I have just drawn), "Absent, but accounted for, in the service of their country."

Hackstaff delivered the salutatory, and then Colonel H. G. Prout addressed the graduating class. S. Bayard Dod, president of the Board of Trustees of the institute, conferred the degrees and presented diplomas to the graduates. P. A. Welles, the valedictorian, made an address, the Rev. Mr. Mitchell pronounced the henciletion, and the orchestra played "The Star Spangled Hanner."

BROOKLYN LOSES A CLOSE GAME. GOOD LUCK AND SUPERIOR BATTING ENABLE THE ORIOLES TO WIN OUT.

bases on bulls, coupled with timely batting, gave the home team four runs and the lead. Baltimore

The growth of Cornell University has been one of quality and character quite as much as of numbers and resources. If, indeed, the elevation of the scholarship and intellectual tone of the University has not been the most remarkable achievement.

The reason for this remarkable scholarship and intellectual tone of the University has not been the most remarkable achievement.

The reason for this remarkable sprowth of Cornell University President Schurman finds in its educational ideal, which he formulated anew as "a diametersted pursuit of knowledge of every kind—old and new—on the one hand, and on the other a practical equipment for the several callings and professions of the modern world."

President Schurman said in conclusion that the impatus to growth has exceeded the increase in material resources. "Knowledge grows apace and the application of it fills us with daily surprises." He enumerated as pressing needs halls of languages, of mathematics, of physiology, zoology, bacteriologoy, with endowments for scholarships and fellowships, a college of fine arts, both building and endowment; halls of residence, and lastly, for the promotion of the common life, "a stately dining-hall and cluthouse."

NOT LEGAL REMOVALS

JUSTICE GARRETSON DECIDES FOR THE OLD EAST RIVER BRIDGE BOARD.

The quo warranto proceedings taken by the Commissioners of the East River Bridge, who were re-moved by Mayor Van Wyck to make room for the present Tammany Commissioners, to oust the latter Commissioners and get back their offices, resulted yesterday morning in a victory for the relators. Justice Garretson, before whom the case was tried, directed the jury to find a verdict that the old Commissioners were never lawfully removed, and that therefore they were still in office. The case will taken immediately to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, and probably argued there be-fore the end of this month. It will not be finally determined until the Court of Appeals has passed on the constitutional questions involved.

Henry C. M. Ingraham, counsel for the relators, continued this morning his reply to the motion made by Assistant Corporation Counsel Almet F. Jenks, who appears for the respondents, to direct a verdict ever seen at $8 and $10, and marked each for his clients. Mr. Ingraham insisted that the tenure of office of the Bridge Commissioners appointed by the Mayors of New-York and Brooklyn was fixed by statute at the time required to com-plete the bridge. The office which they held was a State office, and in no way under the control of the present Mayor of New-York City. The duties missioners, and neither they nor their successor, the present Mayor, and the power of removal or of apointing other Commissioners. The amendatory vacancies caused by death or resignation. Mr. Jenks replied to Mr. Ingraham, and then Justice xtension of the Riverside Drive have asked the Board of Public Improvements to have the facings of the approaches made of granite, instead of sand-stone, and the Corporation Counsel has been con-suited as to a change in the contract held by John C. Sheehan's firm for the work. The change in specifications will involve an additional expenditure of about $80,000. There is money provided for the additional expense, the former Board of Estimato having appropriated $800,000, while the contract was let for $50,000. The original specifications called for granite facings on the approaches, but were changed at the suggestion of Mayor Strong, because he feared that the actual cost would come above $900,000. In view of the actual bid the engineers recommended a return to the original plan.

General conditions at the opening here yesterday all favored higher prices, among the bull factors being reports of delayed harvest in Missouri and excessive rainfall in certain parts of the wheat belt, as well as the early strength of the Liverpool market. Wheat opened at 1% to 2% cents above Wednerday's last quotations, on extensive purchases by large brokers, but a decline soon followed, caused by heavy profit-taking sales. There were occasional unimportant railies in the course of the day, but the general trend of prices was of the day, but the general trend of prices was dewnward until the close, which was weak.
